

CLIMB.

Train for the Fight for Air Stairclimb

ARE YOU READY TO MASTER THE MET?

This one-of-a-kind event is a big goal, but you can do it! Follow this training program and not only will you be ready to take on 42 flights of stairs, you will also be on your way to a healthier, more fit body!

Start training as soon as you can. The more time you train, the better off you will be! Everyone has a different fitness level, so start out at your own pace. However, work hard and push yourself to increase your abilities. Keep track of what you do, so you can see your improvements. The important thing to remember is that you can do anything! There will be days when you are frustrated or feel like giving up, but stick with it. The only way for you to fail this climb is by not doing it!

Please feel free to e-mail any training questions to Jamie at jroberts@breathehealthy.org or call 314-645-5505 x 1012. She will get you an answer from our event trainer, Cynthia Sansone.

*As with any exercise program, if you have any health concerns or past injuries, consult with your doctor before you begin.

TRAINING TIPS:

- Be serious about your workouts, but have fun!
- Drink plenty of water
- Eat healthy
- Get plenty of sleep
- Use proper form and equipment to prevent injuries
- Do not work out the day before the race
- Create a music playlist that keeps you motivated
- Thank yourself for your hard work

WEIGHT TRAINING GUIDELINES

1. Always perform a warm-up prior to weight training and a cool-down following weight training.
2. Do not hold your breath when lifting. Exhale during exertion.
3. Stretch before and after weight training to reduce soreness and promote flexibility.
4. Take the weight through a full range of motion at a constant and controlled rate.
5. Allow muscles to recuperate before exercising them again. Don't exercise a muscle if it is sore.
6. When lifting heavy weight use a spotter to ensure safety.
